

ProVista Technologies Revamps Services and Website

ProVista Technologies unveils its new website while also announcing three new product lines, including dedicated servers, SSL certificates, and corporate communication services.

Philadelphia, Pennsylvania (ProVista Technologies) January 9, 2009 – The online services company, ProVista Technologies unveils its new website and introduces a number of new product lines. The current service offerings have been restructured as well, promising more value to the customer.

Having previously been focused on web hosting for small businesses in southeastern Pennsylvania, ProVista Technologies is now expanding its reach beyond the local market and is offering services for mid-sized businesses and small corporations. The new services now make it possible for smaller businesses to achieve the same level of efficiency and collaboration previously only available to larger businesses.

Keeping up with the industry shift towards hosted solutions and Software as a Service (SaaS), ProVista Technologies is introducing corporate communications services including Hosted Exchange 2007, Office Communications Sever 2007, and SharePoint 3.0. This line of products specifically allows for businesses to utilize a fully managed, secure and scalable solution to maximize their productivity while reducing the overhead associated with maintaining these systems in-house.

Catering to mid-sized businesses, ProVista Technologies is also introducing a line of customizable dedicated servers for clients that require custom configurations or maintain a resource intensive web presence. These options are available with either basic or full management depending on the needs of the individual customer.

Realizing that many clients need to store and transmit sensitive information including client information and transaction data, ProVista Technologies is making it easy for customers to secure their sites and/or servers by offering affordable SSL certificates. Customers will benefit from free SSL configuration on their existing hosting account, taking the hassle out of being security conscious.

Finally, ProVista Technologies has redesigned all of its shared hosting offerings and had more than doubled the resources that were previously allotted and at a cheaper price. In celebration of its 5th year in business, all shared accounts will be discounted by 25% until January 31, 2009.

For additional information, please contact Jordan Sones or visit www.provistatech.com. ProVista Technologies is a privately held company based out of Plymouth Meeting, Pennsylvania.

Contact:

Jordan Sones, President

ProVista Technologies

1-888-865-5690 x. 500

<http://www.provistatech.com>